Things are winding down rapidly here in the City of Houston EOC. When I arrived on Sunday afternoon, there were probably 60+ people in the big room I'm in, with dozens more in surrounding rooms. It's now down to a handful of people in the big room and another handful in the other rooms. The final meeting of the Mayor's EOC Senior Leadership meeting was yesterday. My contacts here expect almost everyone at the EOC to be back at their regular offices by Monday.

My last day here will be Sunday, and then I'll travel back to Dallas on Monday.

There in Corpus, Houston and Austin, do you notice things are slowing down, or is everything still as it has been?

Curtis:

Hey there. Just wanted to make sure you knew the PiAT is not active on the weekends. There won't be a 3:30 call today or tomorrow.

Have a great day!
